people who could not be there to share your joy the first time.

Also, think about who will be reading your family newsletter. What would your friends or distant family members most like to hear about? Do they have any special interests that your family shares?

When you send a holiday newsletter, you can let all of your family members write their own articles or stories. You can also include family portraits, children's school pictures, or photographs from family vacations. Think about what your family would tell each of your friends if you could see them face to face this holiday season. What would you most like to share?

The purpose of a holiday newsletter is to keep friends and family updated on the events in your family's life and to share holiday greetings across the miles. The year-end holidays are a good time to tell about your experiences from the past year and to express warm wishes for the year to come.
